Objective

To address an identified need to ensure that a wide variety of woods workers have the opportunity to receive a consistent core knowledge base relating to environmental awareness and environmentally sensitive practices.

Description

The Front Line Training in Environmentally Sensitive Practices is a project of the Western Newfoundland Model Forest and its partners: Abitibi Consolidated Ltd., Corner Brook Pulp and Paper Ltd., Newfoundland Forest Service Ecosystem Health Division, Gros Morne National Park and the Centre for Forest and Environmental Studies. This report outlines a training session in Roddickton, sponsored by the Western Newfoundland Model Forest. This training session represents the first field test of the curriculum materials by the Newfoundland Forest Service. This report contains the agenda for the two day session, feedback from the participants and recommendations from the presenters.
